TORNADOES.

Scientifically Accounted for, and Some Remote Causes that Produce Painful Results Explained.

The following synopsis of a lecture delivered by Dr. Horace R. Hamilton before the New York society for the promotion of science, contains so much that is timely and important that it can be read with both interest and profit:

There is probably no subject of modern times that has caused and is causing greater attention than the origin of tornadoes. Scientists have studied it for the benefit of humanity; men have investigated it for the welfare of their families. It ted it for the welfare of their families. It has been a vexed subject long considered, and through all this investigation the cyclone has swept across the land carrying destruction to scientists as well as to the innocent dwellers in its track. One thing, however, is certain; the cause of thing, however, is certain; the cause of the cyclone must be sought far away from the whirling body of wind itself. Its results are powerful; its cause must also be powerful. Let us therefore con-sider a few facts. First, the appearance of a cyclone is invariably preceded by dark spots upon the face of the sun. These spots indicating a disturbed condi-tion of the solar regions, necessarily attion of the solar regions, necessarily af-fect the atmosphere of our earth. An unusual generation of heat in one part of the atmosphere is certain to cause a partial vacuum in another portion. Air must rush in to fill this vacuum. Hence the disturbances—hence the cyclone. This theory finds additional confirma-tion in the fact that tornadoes come dur-ing the day and not at night. The dark spots upon the surface of the sun, whatever they may be, seem to cause great commotion in the atmosphere of the world, and it is almost certain that the extremely wet weather of the present season can be accounted for on precisely this basis, Is it reasonable to suppose that the marvelous effect of the sun upon vegetation and life in general shall be less than upon the atmosphere itself through which its rays come? The cause is remote, but the effect is here.

After describing some of the terrible effects of the rays of the same of the terrible effects.

This rule finds its application in nearly every department of life. An operator is in San Francisco—the click of the instrument manipulated by his fingers, in New York. An uneasiness and discust with a countries in the stroke of the pen in his study at the White House, and the whole nation is aroused by the act. An uneasiness and discust with a countries in the stroke the stroke in the stroke the stroke in the str disgust with everything in life, com-monly called home-sickness, is felt by many people, when the cause is to be found in the distant home thousands of miles away. An uncertain pain may be felt in the head. It is repeated in other parts of the body. The appetite departs and all energy is gone. Is the cause necessarily to be found in the head? The next day the feeling increases. There are added symptoms. They continue and become more aggregated. There are added symptoms. They continue and become more aggravated. The slight pains in the head increase to agonies. The nausea becomes chronic. The heart grows irregular, and the breathing uncertain. All these effects have a definite cause; and, after years of deep experience upon this subject, I do not hesitate to say that this cause is to be found in some derangement of the kidneys or liver far away from that nor-

It was while suffering thus that a friend advised me to make a final attempt to recover my health. I sneered inwardly at his suggestion, but I was too weak to make any resistance. He furnished me with a remedy, simple yet palatable and within two days I observed a slight change for the better. This awakened my courage, I felt that I would not die at that time. I continued the use of the remedy, taking it in accordance with directions, un til I became not only restored to my former health and strength, but of greater vigor than I have before known. This condition has continued up to the present time, and I believe I should have died as miserably as thousands of other men have died and are dying every day had it not been for the simple yet wonderful power of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy I employed. The lecturer then described his means of restoration more in detail, and con-cluded as follows:

My complete recovery has caused me to investigate the subject more carefully, and I believe I have discovered the key to most ill health of our modern civilization. I am fully confident that four-fiths of the diseases which afflict humanity might be avoided were the kidneys and liver kent in perfect conditions. keys and liver kept in perfect condition. Were it possible to control the action of the sun, cyclones could undoubtedly be averted. That, however, is one of the things that cannot be. But I rejoice to say that it is possible to control the kid-neys and liver: to render their action neys and liver; to render their action wholly normal, and their effect upon the system that of purifiers rather than poisoners. That this end has been accomplished largely by means of the remedy I have named I do not have a doubt, and I feel it my duty to make this open declaration for the enlightenment of the profession and for the benefit of suffering humanity in all parts of fit of suffering humanity in all parts of

The Sioux Sun Dance. The annual sun dance of the Sioux Indians has just occurred at Rosebud Agency about I,000 Indians being present. The extemony of cutting the pole for the center of the dancing circle was performed Saturday afternoon, Herpipe, a niece of Standing Bear, wielding the ax, and the charge on the prostrate tree was made by over 1,000 young bucks on ponies. On Sunday the brush enclosure was built, and that evening fifteen Indians entered and commenced their long dance, having been fasting four days. Yesterday afternoon the voluntary torture commenced, three men offering themselves. The whole was a dreadful exhibition of physical endurance and savage barbarity. At 5 o'clock the dance ceased, the participants having jumped up and down, blowing their whistles, for fifty hours without food or water, part of the time in the burning teat of the sun. Some were so completely ex-,000 Indians being present. The ceremony teat of the sun. Some were so completely ex-nanted as to dance on with their eyes closed. This is probably the last time these cruelties will be permitted, as a strong effort is being made by the government to stop the sun dance. Maj. Wright leaves for Washington to-morrow, and during his absence his son, W. H. Wright, will have charge of the Rosebud agency.
