THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON. The president is reported to have said that he intended to have a good time in the Yellowstone: "I have," said he, "had enough of what is called society in the winter in Washington. I want to get 100 miles away from the nearest politician, where I can take a rest in my own way and be relieved from the social and political pressure that is so hard to avoid. I shall pressure that is so hard to avoid. I shain rough it just as the rest do, live and sleep in the open air, wear out my old hunting suit, and for the first time in my life become a savage. Such a trip will be worth more to me in instruction and health then twenty seasons at Saratoga or Newport would be."

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

Six directors of the Rutland Railroad company announce that ex-Treasurer Havens' cash account is short $38,000. The total deficit can only be determined by thorough investigation. There has been a large overissue of stock, at one time 5,392 shares, but the actual overissue apparently outstanding now is 2,391 shares. Attachment has been placed upon the property of Havens, which, with his bond, may a ave the road ultimate loss.

The annual report of the Oregon & Transcontinental company shows that at the close of the fiscal year only $23,760,000 of the $30,000,000 of authorized capital stock had been issued. June 30 !ast, the company held 162,732 shares of Northern Pacific common. 151,400 shares of preferred, and 123,535 shares of Oregon railway and navigation stock. This is more than one-third of he capital stock of the Northern Pacific. During the year the company built 215 miles of road.

Northern Pacific stockholders are said to be dissatisfied with the new deal in the road's express business. They say the company did do its own and get the profits, but now a few leading men of the road have secured the privilege to enrich themselves.

FOREIGN NEWS NOTES.

In the French chamber of deputies Challemel Lacour, minister of foreign affairs, replying to questions, said he believed there had been at least exaggeration in the accounts of occurences in Madagascar. He was certain that if Admiral Pierre had adopted any measures they had been necessary and that the admiral had complied with orders to avoid offending England. News of the occurences was lacking, he explained, because the admiral was unable to detach a vessel by which to send dispatches. He declared that the unexplained events could not impair the present good relations between France and England. The utterances in the British parliament on this subject had been moderate and courteous. Challemel Lacour added, if a grave error had been committed, or passion manifested, the French government would not hesitate to fulfill the obligations imposed by a sense of justice and the interests of the country. The minister's remarks were received with

Death of the Mayor of Duluth.

Col. J. B. Culver, mayor of the city, died suddenly on the 10th at Buffalo, N. Y., of heart disease, while being shaved. He was on his way from New York city, where he went two weeks ago to consult a physician regarding his health, accompanied by Mrs, Culver. On the 14th he wrote a letter to his family from New York, saying he had sufficiently recovered to return home and would leave for Buffalo on the 16th, where he would take the steamer China for Duluth. He leaves a family of four daughters and two sons. His death was a great surprise and universally regretted, as he was much esteemed. Col. Culver was born in Delaware in 1830 and came West when a very young man, locating at Prairie du Chien, Wis., in mercantile business. While a resident there he married Miss Sarah V. Woodman daughter of David Woodman, who survives him. He went from there to St. Paul; thence to Superior, in which places he lived for a short time. He was one of the earliest settlers in Duluth, going there in 1856 as an Indian trader, when there were but three families in town. At the breaking out of the war he entered the army and was in service throughout it as colonel of the Thirteenth Michigan.

Arrests for Land Frauds. Duluth Special: At 10 a. m., on the 14th Assistant United States Marshal Brackett, of St. Paul, arrested R. C. Mitchell, editor of the Duluth Tribune and recently appointed receiver of the land office there, on a charge of complicity in land frauds. The government claims to have a very strong case against Mitchell and H. L. Gordon, the latter also being a party to the conspiracy. Gordon lives in Minneapolis, is quite wealthy and well known, and at one time ness, the prosecution will be direct against Mitchell and Gordon. Gov. Marshall worked up the case. The specific charge is that Mitchell, Gordon and Lovejoy employed twenty-seven men to enter some 4,480 acres of land under the pre-emption law, make final proof and then transfer the lands to them. Of course, this proceeding is a violation of the letter and spirit of the preemption law, though it is not an unheard-of practice in the Northwest. Mitchell claims that his part in it was innocent, and that his arrest is inspired by wicked men who want to prevent his onfirmation as register. Some thirty overtacts are challenged to have been done to effect the object of the conspiracy. The laws required but one overt act to make the crime complete. It is asserted that the scheme was for Gordon to furnish the money, Lovejoy to inspect and select the lands, and Mitchell share as partner.

The land embraced in this controversy touches for the most part on Vermillion lake. It is estimated that there are 6,000, 000 feet of pine on the twenty-seven claims. The government officials assert they will push the case to the end. Gordon will be push the case to the end. Gordon will be arrested Monday, or as soon as a warrant can be served on him. It is alleged that Lovejoy turned informer because of the failure of Gordon and Mitchell to make good some $400, which he (Lovejoy) had invested, and an attempt on the part of Mitchell and Gordon to freeze Lovejoy out of the partnership. Mr. Mitchell claims that his arrest is merely to prevent his taking the office to which he has been appointed.

Spread of the Cholera in Egypt.

Atexandria Cable: The alarm prevailing here cannot be exaggerated. No one doubts the existence of cholera here, but the authorities refuse to admit the fact. Twelve deaths are reported to-day, but cannot se verified. Six hundred troops have been drafted from the English army for detail in the cordon lines. All the wine shops are closed at midnight, and the sale of salt fish or of green or overripe fruit is thrown into the sea, and rots on the shore. There is great danger that the progress of the disease will be greatly aided by the fast of the Ramidan, which began on July 6. The day's fasting is weakening, and it is followed by nights of dissipation and orgies.

Death of the Famous "Tom Thumb."

Charles Heywood Stratton, better known as Gen. Tom Taumb, died at his residence at Middletown, Mass., on the 15th inst., of apop'exy. He had been slightly indisposed for a few days, but nothing serious was anticipated. The remains were taken to Bridgeport, Conn., for interment For more than a quarter of a century Tom Thumb has occupied a position in the eye of the public in immerse proportion to his size. While by no means the smallest dwarf ever exhibited, he is by far the most notable. He was born at Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 4, 1838, and had, therefore attained the age of forty-five years and six months when he died. His parents were ordinary sized people, and until the age of four or five Charles was not noticeably small. About that time he ceased growing, however, and when at the age of fourteen he was engaged by P. T. Barnum as an attraction for the New York museum of the great showman, he was about the size of a boy of six. apoplexy. He had been slightly indisposed traction for the New York museum of the great showman, he was about the size of a boy of six. He broadened considerably in later years, but gained little in stature. He has been before the public ever since 1852, and served as an object of curiosity to more people than any other human. Many years ago, "Tom Thumb" was married to a comely female dwarf named "Minnie Warren." Their wedding was celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, in Trinity church, New York, a sister of the bride acting as bridesmaid, and Commodore Nutt. a midget considerably smaller than the groom, and since dead, smaller than the groom, and since dead, serving as best man for the latter. About two years after his marriage Mr. and Mrs. Stratton became happy parents, but their offspring, much to the regret of the curious, lived but a short time. About two years ago, the pair, having amassed a very considerable fortune, retired from the stage and made their home in the handsome residence in the outskirts of Middletons, which dence in the outskirts of Middleboro, which was built under Tom Thumb's personal or-ders. Mrs. Stratton who is several years her husband's junior survives him.

A Washington House Presented to Gen, Sheridan,

The correspondence between Lieut, Gen. P. H. Sheridan and the citizens of the city of Chicago, who presented him a residence in Washington city, in anticipation of his assumption of the command of the armies of the United States next fall, when Gen. Sherman will retire, is published. The letter of presentation is signed by thirtyone prominent citizens, including Anson Stager, Marshall Field, George M. Pullman, N. K. Fairbanks, C. B. Earwell, Joseph Medill, P. D. Armour, Potter Palmer, L. Medill, P. D. Armour, Potter Palmer, L. Z. Leiter and T. B. Blackstone. The letter is a tribute to Gen. Sheridan as an ex-soldier and a citizen, and an expression of the warm personal friendship of the donors. Gen Sheridan's letter acknowledges high appreciation of this neighborly evidence regard in his chosen home as commander of the department of the Missouri, and says when he assumes his new duties the fact that his new house was presented him by Chicago friends will be a matter of special pleasure to him.

Getting Around the Civil Service Law.

Washington Special: Unusual activity was observed in all of the departments today, and investigation showed that all of the vacancies existing in the public service were being filled, and worth and wellbacked employes were being promoted. The cause for this expedition was that the civil service commission would on Monday assume charge of the vacencies and supply them with carefully examined clerks. In the treasury department, however, the most of the changes took place, and Secretary Folger, who returned from New York this

Pressure for promotions during the past week has been tremenduous, and it is asserted that this was the reason for the absence of many of the cabinet officers.

A Half Year's Disasters.

New York Herald: Nearly 3,000 persons, according to Herald history-and this re. sume does not include the hundreds of unortunate events wherein the loss of life was less than three-were sacrificed in the first six mouths of 1883 to accidents and calamitous occurences of one kind and another. It has been thus far a year of almost unparallelled cruelty. Accidents have occurred by floods, by fire, by lightning, by explosions, by panic, by landslides, by snowslides, by storms at sea and storms on shore—dire happenings of every description some in our midst and some in every part shore—dire happenings of every description some in our midst and some in every part of the world. Only well defined happenings will be found in the list, and it must be lett for the reader to picture the destruction of and estimate the lives lost by the long-continued floods in the valleys of the Rhine and Danube, and the Mississippi, the Ohio, and other Western rivers in our own country. Toe first half of the year has been prolific in such floods. It has been prolific too, in tornadoes, in cyclones, and other of nature's agencies for destruction, from which the aggregate loss of life can scarcely be estimated.
