Personal Mention

Mr. Brouson Alcott attributes his long life to subsistence on dry Concord Philosophy and plain vegetables. But there is Mrs. Baker of Taylorsville, Va., who is more than a dozen years Mr. Alcott's senior, and she has made a practice of eating meat and drinking a dozen cups of strong coffee every day. The coffee might have killed old Alcott, but certain it is that Mrs. Baker would have starved to death long ago on a diet of Concord philosophy and baked potatoes.

Some time since Miss Lizzie Newman stopped in a doorway on Second street, Louisville, during a shower. A pleas-ant-voiced lady noticed her standing there and invited her up stairs. Miss Newman took advantage of the offer. Up stairs she met William Crittenden, a man who had lost both eyes while herding cattle on the plains of Texas. Crittenden thought it would be pleasant to court the girl, and make love to her desperately. What he said jokingly, she understood in hard earnest. Before they separated Crittenden had changed his mind, and asked the girl seriously to marry him. She accepted the offer, and on the next night at 9 oclock the two were united by Justice John Gosnell.

The following incident is told us of the Duke of Buccleuch, who recently died in England. Not very long ago, while traveling with the Duke of Northumberland, they found themselves in a carriage with a commercial traveler. The conversation between the three soon became general. At Alnwick station the Duke of Northumberland got out and was driven away in a showey equipage. "That must be a swell," said the commercial traveler. "Do you know who he is?" "He is the Duke of of Northumberland," replied his grace of Baccleuch. "And yet they say that our nobility is haughty! Why, he talked to us two snobs as though we had been his pals!"

It was in the mild September of 1883 that James Hann went into a saloon in Brooklyn with some friends. In the course of the evening he yielded to the somnific influences of beer and dozed. The gas was turned down, a pair of The gas was turned down, a pair of scissors was procured, and in a few minutes Mr. Hann was shorn of his beautiful beard. It was not until he had an interview with his wife on reaching home that Mr. Hann fully realized the force of the calamity that had befallen him. After nursing his wrath for many months he at length resolved to seek redress in the courts. He has brought suit in the supreme court. brought suit in the supreme court, Brooklyn, against the saloon keeper to recover $1,000 for the loss of his beard.

Touching her recent marriage, Mrs. Ella Wheeler-Wilcox writes to a Chicago friend as follows: "I have been exceedingly surprised and pained at the Medical Association Buffalo, N. Y., and enclose bad taste which the press at large displayed in reference to this occurrence in my life. All the severe and often cruel criticisms relative to my book I looked upon as so many dollars, and accepted them with good grace. But in this event which concerned my private life and most sacred feelings, I have felt that I deserved greater courtesy from the newspapers, especially as all that has been written concerning me must be seen and read by strangers who are to be my future associates, and must naturally influence their impressions of me.

Of Days.

Thousands and thousands of men and women have their off days-they are not sick enough to give up, relinquish their duties and go to bed, but as one describes it:

"I feel so drowsy and weary-my head aches."

"I never had a meaner feeling in my life." "My stomach does not feel right." "Don't know what is the matter with me, but do not feel well."

"I have a half feeling of nausea."

"Too cold one minute and too warm the next."

"To use a slang phrase, 'I'm all broke up.'" The above and hundreds of similar expressions are hearddaily, with some there is a known cause, others cannot account for the feeling. It may originate from different reasons, but from whatever cause, nature requires assistance and you can immediately render the assistance and dispel all these unpleasant symptoms. By using Burdock Blood Bitters take them immediately on the appearance of the unpleasant feeling.

Maria Jeanneret, one of the most noted criminals of the age, died in prison at Geneva, Switzerland, recently. She was an extensive secret poisoner, hav-ing caused the death of no less than nine prominent people, with a probabil-ity of scores of others. She belonged to an honorable family, was exemplary in her manners, and apparently kindhearted, so much so that she frequently volunteered her assistance in cases of sickness. She gave her patients the greatest attention, yet they generally died. Belladona was the drug upon which she relied to do the work. When convicted, capital punishment had been abolished, and she was sentenced for life.

WITH

May mean "Poisoned with Potash," This is the case with hundreds who have been unwise enough to take Sarsaparlilas, Potash mixtures, etc., until digestion is almost fatally impaired. Swift's Specific is a vegetable remety, and restores the system to health and builds up the waste made by these poisons.

"I was suffering with Blood Poison, and treated several months with Mercury and Potash, only to make me worse. The Potash took awaymy appetite and gave me dyspepsia, and both gave me rheumatism. I then took Sarsaparillas, etc. All these Sarsaparilla mixtures have Potash in them. This made me still worse, as it drove the poison farther into my system. A friend insisted I should take Swift's Specific, and it circed me of the Blood Poison, drove the Mercury and Potash out of my system, and to-day I am as well as I ever was.
