Louis Kossuth in Washington

From Reminiscences of Ben. Perley Poore. Kossuth had been released from his imprisonment within the dominion of the sublime porte, by request of the Government of the United States, and taken to England in the war steamer Misssissipi. In due time he arrived at Washington, where he created a marked June 18, '83. sensation. The distinguished magyar wore a military uniform, and the steel scabbard of his sword toniled the ground as he walked. He was the guest of Congress at Brown's Hotel, but those Senators and Representatives who called to pay their respects found members of his retinue on guard before the door of his his apartments, armed with muskets and bayonets, while his ante-room was crowded with the members of his staff. They had evidently been reared in camps, as they caroused all day and then tumbled into their beds booted and spurred, furnishing items of liquors, wines, cigars and damaged furniture for the long and large notel bill which congress had to pay. Mr Sew-ard entertained the Hungarian party at an evening reception, and a number of congressmen gave Kossuth a subscription dinner at the National Hotel at which several of the known aspirants for the presidency spoke. Mr. Webster was, as became the secretary of state carefully guarded in his remarks, and later in the evening when the champagne had flowed freely, he indulged in what appeared to be his impromptu individ-ual opinions, but unluckily dropped at his seat a slip of paper on which his gushing sentences had been carefully written out. General Houston managed to leave the table in time to avoid being called upon to speak, and Generel Scott, who regarded Kossuth as a gi gantie humbug, had escaped to Richmond. Kossuth was invited to dine at the White House, and on New Year's day he held a reception; but he failed in his attempt to secure Congressional recognition or material aid. A number of the leading public men at Washington were so disgusted by the assumption and arrogance displayed by Kossuth, and by the toadyism manifested by many of those who humbled themselves before him, that they organized a banquet, at which Senator Crittenden was the principal speaker. "Beware," said the eloquent Kentuckian, in the words of Washington, "of the introduction or exercises of a foreign influence among you! We are Americans. The Father of our Country has taught us, and we have learned to govern ourselves. If the rest of the world have not learned that lesson, how shall they teach us? We are the teachers, and yet they appear here with a new exposition of Washington's Farewell Address. For one, I do not want this new doctrine. I want to stand super antiquas vias, upon the old road that Washington traveled, and that every President, from Washington to Filmore, has traveled."

The Puture for Women's Dress.

Clara Belle in Cincinnati Enquirer.

We are threatened with a return to the by-gone and reprehensible fashion of tight lacing. There will be almost as much violation of taste and common sense in dress in the near future as was ever perpetrated in the days of wasp waists. The costly velvets, plushes and brocades are to be made up with long, tight bodices, peaked front and back, small in the waist and not loose in the arm-hole. The hideous bustle, the highshouldered sleeves and the voluminous skirt are the striking features of the new-styles forming the dreadful caricaturing outlines of the new dresses sent out for American women from first-class Paris-makers. The train appears again for full-dress occasions. Heaven help us. and a woman in a very fashionable toilet of high ceremony is arbitrarily bliged to carry an amount of dry goods of such weight as must make her feel like an overladen pack donkey. Think of eating, or dancing, or walking, or even sitting in a dress weighing more than fifty pounds, stiffened with whalebone, tight in the waist and armholes, or in the neck, back and front, and extending to enormous proportions in the back. The doctors will have many interesting cases of spinal disease between now and the time the cholera comes over to finish killing us,

Girls in Odd Stockings.

"Searlet stockings? Yes, they're all the go," said a Philadelphia hosiery dealer. "But that isn't the latest craze by any means."

"What is the latest fashion then?" "Why, on Saturday morning I had three young lady customers who came in and bought three pair of red and three pair of black hose. I was somewhat surprised and asked the object. In each case I was told that it was not considered the proper caper to wear two red stockings now, any more than it is to wear two black ones."
"Well, what on earth were they going to do?'

"Wear one of each kind-a scarlet stocking on one foot and a black one on the other. It's a fact, I assure you. And the fashion is gaining ground, for this morning I have had several more customers on the same errand. Black and red you know, are striking, and at the same time becoming contrasts."

PERRY DAVIS'

[From Rev. R. Telepord, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

Dear Sirs.—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China. I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a zill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a teaspoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until rollef was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities, Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the Pain-Killer.

Best Goods are Put in Smallest Parcels.

The old proverb is certainly true in the case of Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," which are little sugar-wrapped parcels, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, containing as much carthartic power as is done up in the biggest, most repulsive-looking pill. Unlike the big pills, however, they are mild and pleasant, in their operation—do not produce griping pains, nor render the bowels costive after using.
